ADDENDUM

Grinder, B. (1997). An overview of financial services resources on the internet. Financial Services Review, 6, 125–140.

The Certified Financial Planner Board of Standards, Inc. is the organization that awards the CFP and Certified Financial Planner designation, not the Institute of Certified Financial Planners (ICEP). The CFP Board is located on the Internet at www.cfp-board.org, for information on how to become certified, the list of registered educational institutions, disciplinary actions, practice standards developments and much more. This site also provides links to other financial services organizations, including educational institutions, membership organizations and regulators.